

A simple thought of Love that can change the world

Have you ever wondered why the power of Love has been celebrated in songs, books, movies and in all other sorts of ways?

It is because it is the most potent Force in the universe and beyond.

Today, when we look at the news and despair about the seeming lack of Love in human affairs, we may wonder where things are headed.

If we'd all love each other as the wonderful souls we are, each embodied in an exhilarating and often challenging adventure to further our evolution, the miseries and traumas of this world would either vanish or become much more bearable for those who have chosen, before incarnating, such circumstances in their lives so as to prod them ahead on their own unique path.

At this juncture in our collective story, when so much hangs in the balance, we have an opportunity to exert this most powerful Force for Good in a way that can make a whole world of difference.

This is the call I was given in a recent dream to send out to the world for others to consider and then make their own choice as to whether they wish to heed it.

On this Valentine Day, celebrated in many cultures as a special moment each year to express our Love for each other, let us pause during that day, this coming Saturday, for a short or longer moment, and think about all the people we know and love in our life, and as we do so, let us send to each of them a warm, heartfelt vibration of Love, from heart to heart and soul to soul, taking stock as we do so of why each of those souls is significant in our life.

And once we are done with this simple, and possibly soul tingling task, let us radiate the same expression of pure Love to all souls in embodiment at this moment on this planet. Let us see and feel them all as our soul kins, our greater family, all experiencing their unique journey from birth to transition back to the Great Beyond, to the Realm of pure Love where we all come from and always go back after each stint into the material world.

Take then as long as you feel you will need to share the Love of Source with all, no matter the brilliance or lack thereof some may display through their current human personage. No soul is underserving of being loved. All can and will resonate in some way to the dispensation of Love showered on all during that day of remembrance of the only thing that really matters: we are all souls living a physical experience, as best as we each can, and everyday is another opportunity bestowed upon us to Be all the Love we can Be.

Wonders will happen once Love outshines all the miasmas our human personages have created in their quest for the greatest thing there is... a deeply felt sense of belonging to the Almighty Source thriving deep within each of our souls.

Imagine all the people sharin' all the world.

*You may say I'm a dreamer
But I'm not the only one.
I hope some day you'll join us
And the world will live as one.*

- John Lennon
